MILTON POTTS KILLED, WIFE INJURED

BROKEN NECK TAKES YOUTH IN ACCIDENT

Wife Suffers Concussion But is Conceded Chance to Recover

THROWN INTO DITCH

Cause of Accident Not Definitely Known

Apparently thrown from a truck when it skidded on the Ringgold-pk, 500 yards northeast of the city limits, shortly before 2 a. m. Thursday, Milton F. Potts, 22, died of a broken neck in Berger hospital at 2:32 a. m., and his wife, Mrs. Adelaide Fissell Potts, was seriously injured although she is conceded a chance to recover.

Mr. Potts, only son of Mr. and Mrs. Walter Potts, 209 W. Mound-st, died shortly after he was taken to the hospital. He had not regained consciousness. Mrs. Potts, suffering from a brain concussion, was in a semi-conscious condition.

At times when Mrs. Potts was conscious Thursday she could not recall what caused the accident.

She was not told of her husband's death.

CAUSE UNDETERMINED

Mrs. Potts is probably the only person who knows just how the accident happened. It is thought the couple, riding in the Chevrolet truck of Joe Morris, this city, an intimate friend of the deceased youth, was coming toward this city after taking a ride in the truck. Young Potts either lost control of the car or it began to skid, and it swung toward the left of the highway. He attempted to swing the wheels back onto the road, as marks along the side of the ditch disclose, and when he had the truck back onto the pavement the rear end swung around and skidded.

MOTOR STILL RUNNING

It is thought that at this time both Mr. and Mrs. Potts were thrown from the truck. There is no door on the driver's side of the machine. The truck continued to skid and leaving the road crashed through a fence and stopped. When the tragic scene was discovered the lights of the truck were still burning and the motor running. The man and wife were lying about 10 yards from the truck in the ditch, Mrs. Potts was on her husband's back, both unconscious. It is possible that when she saw the truck was out of control, Mrs. Potts grabbed her husband, both being thrown from the truck at the same time.

The truck was not damaged.

POLICE NOTIFIED

Local police were first informed of the accident shortly after 2 a.m by Bud Moomaw of East Ringgold, who with two other youths, was returning to his home from this city. He told police that they had found two people in the ditch, both apparently dead. Officers Thomas McManamy and Fred Fitzpatrick and Night Desk Sergeant Raymond Smith hurried to the scene and rushed the couple to the hospital where they were placed under the care of Drs. H D. Jackson and E. S. Shane.

Mr. Potts besides the fractured neck which caused his death suffered a broken nose and numerous cuts where his face struck the ground. Mrs. Potts suffered from a concussion and bruises and lacerations, although the head injury is

Fire Chief Asks To Ban Large Fire Bell; Double Parking Brings Comment

Elimination Would Halt Crowds Chasing Truck, Wise Tells Council

KIWANIS IS HEARD

Councilmen, Safety Director Talk on Parking

The city's fire bell which for many, many years has been peeling out fire alarms may be 'junked' if reports made to city council Wednesday evening by Talmer Wise, fire chief, and the local Kiwanis club, are followed.

In both reports the ringing of the bell for each fire is named as a contributing cause for difficulty the department has with traffic on every call it answers. Both the fire chief and the Kiwanis club, represented by Alfred Lee, Northridge-rd, chairman of the club's committee on public affairs, advocated its abolition.

The fire chief in his report said "The department has been greatly hampered in answering calls by the amount of traffic and by the disregard of the red traffic light to stop. Many autos are parked too close to the truck and plugs and some autoists even drive over the fire hose.

ELIMINATE RACING

"If the large fire bell was discontinued, I believe this would stop a large amount of racing to fires and parking of so many autos near the truck."

The Kiwanis club's report not only included the danger of crowds following the fire truck but lamented the fact that the city's ordinances pertaining to speed and lights of automobiles are not more rigidly enforced, that

BOND ISSUE IS VOTED BY CITY "DADS"

Calcar Plant on Edge of Scioto River to Become City Property

$25,000 NEEDED

Council Unanimously Approves Plant Purchase

The first step toward purchase of the sewage disposal plant, located at the edge of the Scioto river in the rear of the Container Corporation of America plant, was made in city council Wednesday evening when a resolution of necessity to issue bonds in the amount of $25,000 for the purchase of the plant was unanimously passed.

The resolution was presented to council by T. M. Barnes, chairman of the committee of the whole which had been studying the project. The plant is owned by the Calcar Products Corporation.

The resolution states that "the bond issue is necessary to obtain funds to pay the cost and expense of acquiring by purchase real estate and buildings thereon for the purpose of a municipal disposal plant for said city."

TO AID WELFARE

In the resolution the sewage disposal plant is termed "conducive to public health, welfare and convenience."

This step is one of several to follow before the plant is ready for operation. The means of handling operation and upkeep expense will be brought before council at a later meeting.

The disposal plant has been given the approval of the state board of health and has been highly lauded by Mr. Waring, the board's chief engineer, who at various times has visited the location and has brought interested persons with him. The state conducted a lengthy test on the ability of the plant before final approval was stamped on it.

TO PURCHASE LAND

The Container Corporation has agreed to sell land—slightly more than three acres—to the city for the plant. A price of $100 an acre has been agreed upon, it is reported.

Council believes that by purchasing the plant at this time much money, which inevitably will have to be spent later, will be saved. The state board nearly each week, has been ordering additional cities to install new disposal plants in an effort to clean up streams, creeks and rivers throughout the state. Columbus has a three and one-half million dollar bond issue coming up at the election this fall for a sewage disposal plant. It is expected, however, that the issue will be swamped when it is placed before the voters. If Columbus would clean up its end of the Scioto river, with Circleville falling in line, other cities farther south would follow and the Scioto river could be made a spot of beauty as it once was.

MIAMI, Fla., Aug. 18—Acquitted of the charge that he murdered Haden Clarke, Captain William Lancaster sat in the spacious library in the luxurious home of his chief counsel today, relaxing from the ordeal of 14 days in court on trial for his life.

He breathed with relish the air of freedom, his to enjoy for the first time in nearly four months. With him were James M. Carson, brilliant defense attorney, whose marshalling of facts had been instrumental in Lancaster's acquittal and Captain Joseph Ince, war-time pal of Lancaster who hurried from Detroit to testify in his behalf.

It had been scarcely 12 hours since a jury in circuit court had brought in its verdict that Lancaster was "not guilty" of slaying the youthful writer who won from him the love of Mrs. Jessie M. Keith-Miller— the "Chubbie" who had been his flying companion since they flew from England to Australia five years ago.

CANTON, Aug. 18.—Grover W. Fleming, 45, of Urbana, and W. H. N. Stevens, 42, of Newark and Columbus, alleged officials of The Ohio Examiner, a weekly newspaper, today were released under bonds of $1,000 each at a hearing on warrants charging them with criminal libel.

The two men, involved in a libel case filed by Mrs. Mamie Lee Ehlers, of Canton, through the testimony of William B. Crane, former circulation manager of the paper, at his trial on libel charges, were arrested in Columbus last night and brought to Canton immediately.

Mrs. Ehlers preferred the charges against Crane, who was listed as publisher of The Examiner, as a result of an article about the woman's operation of a filling station, which appeared in the newspaper last July 21.

Calcar Plant on Edge of Scioto River to Become City Property

$25,000 NEEDED

Council Unanimously Approves Plant Purchase

The first step toward purchase of the sewage disposal plant, located at the edge of the Scioto river in the rear of the Container Corporation of America plant, was made in city council Wednesday evening when a resolution of necessity to issue bonds in the amount of $25,000 for the purchase of the plant was unanimously passed.

The resolution was presented to council by T. M. Barnes, chairman of the committee of the whole which had been studying the project. The plant is owned by the Calcar Products Corporation.

The resolution states that 'the bond issue is necessary to obtain funds to pay the cost and expense of acquiring by purchase real estate and buildings thereon for the purpose of a municipal disposal plant for said city.'

TO AID WELFARE

In the resolution the sewage disposal plant is termed 'conducive to public health, welfare and convenience.'

This step is one of several to follow before the plant is ready for operation. The means of handling operation and upkeep expense will be brought before council at a later meeting.

The disposal plant has been given the approval of the state board of health and has been highly lauded by Mr. Waring, the board's chief engineer, who at various times has visited the location and has brought interested persons with him. The state conducted a lengthy test on the ability of the plant before final approval was stamped on it.

TO PURCHASE LAND

The Container Corporation has agreed to sell land—slightly more than three acres—to the city for the plant. A price of $100 an acre has been agreed upon, it is reported.

Council believes that by purchasing the plant at this time much money, which inevitably will have to be spent later, will be saved. The state board nearly each week, has been ordering additional cities to install new disposal plants in an effort to clean up streams, creeks and rivers throughout the state. Columbus has a three and one-half million dollar bond issue coming up at the election this fall for a sewage disposal plant. It is expected, however, that the issue will be swamped when it is placed before the voters. If Columbus would clean up its end of the Scioto river, with Circleville falling in line, other cities farther south would follow and the Scioto river could be made a spot of beauty as it once was.

Cubs Turn Back Braves In 19th

NEW YORK, Aug. 18.—If it comes down to a question of gameness, the Chicago Cubs deserve to win the National league pennant. They looked like real champions yesterday in nosing out Boston, 3 to 2, in a 19-inning marathon, the longest major league game of the season.

In the 19th, a 2 to 2 tie that had existed since the seventh frame was shattered on only one hit when Herman singled, took second as English was hit by a pitched ball, went to third on a sacrifice and scored on a fly by the rookie, Demaree, a pinch hitter.

Not an error was made during the marathon. Jordan and Grimm, the rival first basemen, had 22 and 21 putouts, respectively

TINNING STARS

Frankhouse, who had held the Cubs scoreless from the seventh inning, was replaced by Pruett as the Boston pitcher when Demaree, the last batter, strode to the plate. For the Cubs, Bud Tinning pitched scoreless ball from the sixth inning to the 18th, when he was lifted for a pinch hitter and was replaced by Guy Bush.

Jumping Joe Stripp drove in three runs, two of them in a winning eighth inning rally, as Brooklyn downed Pittsburgh 4 to 1. The Dodgers now are only half a game behind the second-place Pirates.

Manager Bill Terry showed the hired hands on the Giants how to hit by clouting his 24th homer, two doubles and two singles as Jim Mooney blanked Cincinnati with four hits, 8 to 0.

The Cardinals and Phillies were washed out.

GROVE IN FORM

In the American league the Yankees beat Detroit for the third time in a row, 8 to 3, for their 10th consecutive victory, their longest winning streak of the season. Babe Ruth hit his 34th homer.

The Athletics regained second place from Cleveland with the peerless Lefty Grove blanking the Indians 11 to 0 for his 18th win The lanky southpaw held Cleveland to four hits while the A's knocked the mighty Wes Ferrell loose from his shoestrings.

Dale Alexander drove in four runs with a homer and two singles as the Red Sox took the Browns into camp, 7 to 3.

The lose streak of the White Sox reached eight straight as the pale hose dropped a 4 to 2 decision to Washington.

Taken as a whole the Dollar Day activity this year may be classed along with the real commercial successes staged by Circleville merchants and The Herald takes pride in having been able to contribute its share in bringing together shopper and merchant through its Dollar Day edition.

The people's response to the Dollar Day bargains is an indication that the depression has not strangled buying but that they are ready to promote business when proper offers are made by the merchants. That the merchants appreciate this goes without saying and that the entire program will reflect high credit upon all who participated.

Cubs Turn Back Braves In 19th

NEW YORK, Aug. 18.—If it comes down to a question of gameness, the Chicago Cubs deserve to win the National league pennant. They looked like real champions yesterday in nosing out Boston, 3 to 2, in a 19-inning Marathon, the longest major league game of the season.

In the 19th, a 2 to 2 tie that had existed since the seventh frame was shattered on only one hit when Herman singled, took second as English was hit by a pitched ball, went to third on a sacrifice and scored on a fly by the rookie, Demaree, a pinch hitter.

Not an error was made during the marathon. Jordan and Grimm, the rival first basemen, had 22 and 21 putouts, respectively

TINNING STARS

Frankhouse, who had held the Cubs scoreless from the seventh inning, was replaced by Pruett as the Boston pitcher when Demaree, the last batter, strode to the plate. For the Cubs, Bud Tinning pitched scoreless ball from the sixth inning to the 18th, when he was lifted for a pinch hitter and was replaced by Guy Bush.

Jumping Joe Stripp drove in three runs, two of them in a winning eighth inning rally, as Brooklyn downed Pittsburgh 4 to 1. The Dodgers now are only half a game behind the second-place Pirates.

Manager Bill Terry showed the hired hands on the Giants how to hit by clouting his 24th homer, two doubles and two singles as Jim Mooney blanked Cincinnati with four hits, 8 to 0.

The Cardinals and Phillies were washed out.

GROVE IN FORM

In the American league the Yankees beat Detroit for the third time in a row, 8 to 3, for their 10th consecutive victory, their longest winning streak of the season. Babe Ruth hit his 34th homer.

The Athletics regained second place from Cleveland with the peerless Lefty Grove blanking the Indians 11 to 0 for his 18th win. The lanky southpaw held Cleveland to four hits while the A's knocked the mighty Wes Ferrell loose from his shoestrings.

Dale Alexander drove in four runs with a homer and two singles as the Red Sox took the Browns into camp, 7 to 3.

The lose streak of the White Sox reached eight straight as the pale hose dropped a 4 to 2 decision to Washington.

lines of merchandise, were getting their share of the business. And so far as could be learned from the buying public they were more than pleased with the prices and the quality of the merchandise offered.

Taken as a whole the Dollar Day activity this year may be classed along with the real commercial successes staged by Circleville merchants and The Herald takes pride in having been able to contribute its share in bringing together shopper and merchant through its Dollar Day edition.

The people's response to the Dollar Day bargains is an indication that the depression has not strangled buying but that they are ready to promote business when proper offers are made by the merchants. That the merchants appreciate this goes without saying and that the entire program will reflect high credit upon all who participated.

murder." Lancaster remarked, "After the verdict I stood in the counsel conference with Mr. Carson and heard them shout: "Lancaster acquitted;" four month between. A different feeling quite!"

Captain Lancaster's first thought after a rest was a job.

She is charged with illegal entry into the United States. The hearing may be postponed several days, according to information at immigration headquarters.

Chautauqua's Adieu

LIKE the tent show, the medicine show and the barnstorming theatrical troups, all of which once flourished throughout the United States, the chautauqua is passing out of the picture in rural America. Its end was foretold 15 years ago.

With the passing this year of another and one of the largest chautauquas of the East, the section witnessed the last struggles of a vast institution that for the better part of half a century played a major role in the development of rural and semiurban America. Only in those vast, sparsely settled regions between the Missouri River and the Sierra Nevada will chautauquas pitch their tents this year.

Radio, moving pictures, automobiles and good roads robbed the chautauqua of its following. It ceased to be profitable or even self-supporting when it ceased to be rural and small-town America's principal source of platform entertainment and information.

There was a time when chautauqua week was the biggest event of the year. It ranked even higher than circus day and revival week as a community affair and drew eager patrons from the surrounding coutryside. As such it performed a valuable service, giving the non-urban millions essentials obtainable in no other way.

Though unmourned the chautauqua is not unappreciated. The nation will long remember its debt to the Swiss bell ringers, the lecturers on optimism and service, players and the magicians who wrought their spellbinding under chautauqua canvas.

Prosperity Returning

THERE are pessimists, malcontents, troublemakers, who believe that a panic exists or impends and who do not desire to think otherwise. Their poor distorted minds seem to derive some pleasure out of those visions of ruin and suffering, although difficult to see in what way they personally will benefit even though hard times discredit those of other political and social beliefs.

Fortunately for the future prosperity and happiness of the nation the great body of Americans are optimistic economically, politically and socially. They constantly see before them better times, better things. That is the mood in which one now finds them.

The United States is renewing its natural progress toward greater prosperity, greater production, greater comfort and better living conditions for the average man. The signs of vigor and confidence are as unmistakable as the signs of spring. The winter of discontent is over.

It is not surprising to see the country turning away from its recent troubles and rapidly regaining its habitual stride of prosperity.

All other public questions are subordinate to the supreme question of keeping the American people profitably employed. If the United States is busy and productive, no obstacle is too great for it to remove or surmount.

No Cause for Worry

THOSE apprehensive souls who live in fear of the end of things should find reassurance in the testimony of an astronomer that the universe is still a long way from disintegration, supposing that it is headed for such an ignominious finish.

Basing his estimate on the measurable radiation from the fiery suns and on the scientific experience that everything that burns must finally burn out, he calculates that in the stars, the last spark of heat and engery, won't flicker out for another thousand million million years.

Even on the hypotheses that everything that burns will in time burn out and that light and heat are essential to human life, there is apparently nothing to worry about for the present, if the astronomer has worked his arithmetic right.

But do not astromers presume a little too much in applying mundane laws to cosmic behavior? What ever process created these solar systems may conceivably be in operation today to maintain them or renew them. The origin of the universe is still far beyond the understanding of science its maintenance may be another such mystery.

In any case, the date of dissolution is now postponed to a time where it need cause this generation no worry.

More than a quarter million trees were planted by residents of Summit-co this spring. This number is more than for any other county in the state. Total tree planting in Ohio slightly exceeded three million forest seedlings.

"EMBERS OF LOVE"

By HAZEL LIVINGSTON

COPYRIGHT 1931 BY KING FEATURES SYNDICATE, INC.

CHAPTER FIFTY

The bubchen was well. He was chubby and blooming. He reached for the crystal beads around Lily Lou's neck, and pulled on them sturdily.

But he didn't know her. Oh, he didn't know her!

Mrs. Jensen came and took him from Lily Lou's arms, and he reached his little hand, and put it on Mrs. Jensen's shoulder as she bore him away.

Lily Lou wept.

"Pshaw!" Mrs. Jensen said, "don't you care! They never know anybody really at that age."

Lily Lou was not comforted. She told Tony about it when he came in to see her that evening. "Sure, he's too young to remember. Let's eat and you'l feel better," he said.

He had with him a can of antipasto, two tins of anchovies and a long loaf of Italian bread and half a pound of Swiss cheese.

She made coffee and they feasted.

"Too bad Maxie is out. She'll miss the party."

"I can't be sorry," Tony said, with his mouth full of bread and cheese.

"I know you don't like her. But she's been such a good friend to me, Tony. Where do you suppose I'd be living now if it weren't for her? And, oh, Tony, if I just had enough to hire someone to take care of the bubchen here Maxine would even agree to that! And there aren't many that would, now, are there, Tony?"

For answer he swore in his native Italian. Then he got up and began to pace the floor, waving his arms, muttering to himself:

"To think that I—that I would cut off my right arm for you—"

"Tony!"

"Don't stop me, I adore you. You know that. Always—from the first. And now this hellish poverty. Bills, debts, bills! Nothing to offer you."

Lily Lou's mouth twitched. She didn't know whether she was going to laugh or cry. Tony, poor blessed, darling Tony. . .

He loved her. Not because she was pretty or because she had the beginnings of a career, but just for herself.

She found her eyes filling. "Tony," she said gently, "it does not matter, do you see? Because all that—all love—everything like that—is gone for me. Dear Tony, I loved the man I married, and I couldn't ever—couldn't ever—"

"You still love him!"

"Yes. I suppose so, Tony. Not that it matters."

"After all that is past you can still love him?"

"Yes, no matter what he did, it doesn't matter, because he's part of me."

She went through the want ads in the papers. But if she did get a job it wouldn't begin to pay for her lessons, with Gwin or anyone else worth while. And how would she eat and what would the bubchen do?

Better to have given up—stayed in California. But if she did that the baby . . . No, there was no going back. She'd have to go on, somehow.

She borrowed $50 from Wanda Pillsbury, hating herself for asking, hating herself for taking it, hating Wanda for her air of "I never expect to see it again, but I'm kind-hearted and can't refuse—"

That melted in 10 days, what with her share of the month's expenses in the apartment, and the woolly rabbit with the floppy ears that she couldn't resist for the baby.

It was well along in September now. Gwin came in twice a week, and after the first of October she would work with him every day, and would be able to take the weekly check conscientiously. If she could just hold out until then . . . Mrs. Jensen's $50 was due on the twenty-first, and there would be extras besides, perhaps $12 or $15.

She had started work in the Metropolitan chorus, three nights a week for rehearsals now, and soon it would be every night. Dramatic lessons, too, and Gwin told her it was time she took fencing and dancing . . . watching her with that glitter in his eye. . . .

"What's the trouble today?"

"Nothing. It's just that I'm overwhelmed when I realize how unprepared I am—even for the little parts I'm likely to get this season if I'm lucky—"

"What did I tell you when you came here a year ago—all ready to sing Butterfly, and a few other big roles?"

"I know. But I didn't realize then. How could I? When I look back now and think of the hopes I had and how easy it seemed to realize them when I had only a smattering of languages—"

"You mean when you knew no languages and couldn't sing English correctly—"

"Yes, and when I think of all the other girls I've known — lots of them not so young as I, nor so—so pretty—striving—and hoping—Oh, Gwin, aren't you sorry for them? For all the girls who want to be singers, and are going to fail? Aren't you sorry for me too? I am—I could weep for all of us—"

He had been sitting on the piano bench. He rose now and took her gently into his arms.

"Don't say Gwin—it's ridiculous. Say Dwight—"

"Dwight, then—it doesn't matter, does it?"

He held her off at arm's length, studying her. Her sweep of dark, waving hair, her fabulous lily-like skin, her dark brows, her full scarlet lips. "Yes, it matters. It matters a lot. You're not altogether a fool. What's the answer going to be? Oh, you don't have to give it now—this minute. Think it over, that's all. I've got to know."

Lily Lou walked home, prepared her dinner and Maxine's. Canned spinach with a poached egg. Nourishing and cheap.

Her hands laid the table, broke the eggs into the boiling water, scooped them out with a serving spoon.

But she hardly saw them, hardly saw what she was doing.

"Oh, gosh, spinach!" Maxine sighed, coming into the kitchen to sniff of the signs of food. "Well, never mind, I'll eat it. But let's have that can of plum pudding you were going to save for Thanksgiving. I could stand the spinach, if I was sure of the dessert . . . well! You've been crying. It's a real tragedy all right, if you shed a tear. Tell me, has little Robin got whooping cough, or did your voice leave you?"

All that night Lily Lou tossed in her bed. In the morning she rose at six, to go to Jamaica Park to see the bubchen, before work at the studio. That would help . . . would help her to decide. When she held him in her arms she had courage . . . courage for anything . . .

"He's growing out of all his clothes," Mrs. Jensen said, "and I don't know as I can keep him this winter or not, because I'm thinking of getting married again . . . yes, ma'am, and while my husband ain't opposed to children none, not if they was his, that is, still he don't want a houseful of other people's—"

"I see," Lily Lou said.

Mrs. Jensen was making up her mind for her.

* * * *

At rehearsal that night the chorus master singled her out to sing a difficult phrase alone.

Afterwards he said, "Very soon, my dear, very soon now, we shall hear from you. This season the minor parts and next season . . . who knows? Take care of your throat, mind, no straining! Do not force that white tone. Remember that interpretation is the big thing But I need not say that to a pupil of Gwin."

She told Gwin what he had said, hoping to propitiate him.

He smiled, and said nothing.

He was coaching her in two entire roles now, Traviata and Butterfly. She already knew Rosina in The Barber of Seville, and Gilda in Rigoletto, and Mignon and Manon would follow.

Could anyone expect her to give up a chance like that? Wasn't there some way? Some way . . . but she couldn't think of any . . .

"What IS the matter with you?" Maxine demanded, that night.

"Nothing. Just—finances."

"Fudge! With Gwin to back you, and Tony in line for the big money too, and Nahlman—"

"She's in Europe!"

"Landed today, on the Ile de France. Don't you read your papers?"

Lily Lou piled the unwashed dishes on the sink, grabbed her hat and coat.

"Hotel Ritz," she told the taxi man she hailed at the corner.

Nahlman might not be at the Ritz, of course. She might be out. She might not even consent to see her.

At the desk she asked Nahlman's room number, and was curtly refused the information.

A young man in a creased tweed suit who had followed her to the desk turned away just as she did.

"Hard luck!" he said.

"Yes," she said, trying to answer his blithe smile.

She walked over to a chair to sit for a while. Perhaps some idea would come to her. Perhaps Madame Nahlman might come in, and see her. Or, she might go to a public telephone and call the hotel and ask for Susanne Coini

She started up. The strange young man was right beside her. "What's the hunch?" he asked her.

"Why—I don't know just what you mean—"

"Aren't you a newspaper woman?"

"Oh my goodness, no!"

He grinned. "My mistake. Thought you were too pretty for it. I had a hunch myself. Thought I might let you in on it."

She dismissed him, smiling, wishing him luck. After a while he strolled over toward the elevators and Lily Lou gathered courage to go to the public telephone, and ask for Susanne Coin.

"It's Lily Lou! Lily Lou Lansing! I just heard you got in on the Ile de France. I wonder if Madame—"

"Why, Miss Lansing, how glad I am to hear of you . . . just a moment, Madame heard me call your name. Where are you? Downstairs? Oh, Madame says, come up at once!"

Madame Nahlman embraced her, cried over her. "My dear, how I have missed you! Let me look at you. The same Lily! Oh, I have so much to tell you. Sit down. Such a hard summer. No, sit close to me—now—we can talk—"

So different from the last, cool meeting.

Cod Liver Oil an Aid in Halting Rickets

When It Is Difficult to Give the Child Sufficient Sunlight This Remedy Is Best.

By Royal S. Copeland, M. D.
United States Senator from New York.
Former Commissioner of Health, New York City.

IN spite of advances made in the study of nutritional disorders, rickets continues to be one of the tragedies of childhood. The disease can be eliminated only when every parent takes advantage of what has been learned by medical science.

Dr. Copeland.

Rickets, one of the nutritional diseases of children, is caused by absence of sunlight and lack of phosphorus and lime in the diet. When the diet is deficient in vitamin D, there is improper growth and development of the muscles.

The disease can be prevented when the diet contains an abundant supply of vitamin D, or when the body is exposed to sunlight. When it is not possible to give the child sufficient sunlight, the diet must be regulated to supply the necessary protective substances.

Cod Liver Oil Aids

Fortunately cod liver oil contains an abundant supply of vitamin D. That is why all baby specialists advise giving cod liver oil to every growing child as early as the sixth week, and that it be continued through the second year.

Because the early symptoms of rickets are overlooked, a child may have rickets for a long time without the parent realizing it. Though the disease is not fatal, it undermines the health and growth of the child. Every restless and irritable child that does not show normal progress in growth and development should be suspected of having rickets.

Infants with rickets constantly turn their heads from side to side. They sweat freely, have poor appetite and many digestive disturbances.

Importance of Prevention

Unfortunately when the disease is neglected certain changes occur in the bony structure of the body due to lack of lime and phosphorus. The skull may become square in shape and show marked ridges. Bony swellings may be found on the ribs. The wrists are enlarged and soft. Lack of strength in the leg bones results in bowing of the knee. Occasionally abnormal curvature of the spine results from rickets.

The importance of preventing rickets and of discovering it in its early stages cannot be overemphasized. Please bear in mind the value and importance of sunlight and cod liver oil in promoting the welfare of children.

At The Grand

"After Tomorrow" Fox Film version of the John Golden and Hugh Stange Broadway stage success of the same name opens its local engagement Thursday at the Grand Theater.

Charles Farrell and Marian Nixon are to be seen in the leading roles of the picture, as the romantic young sweethearts whose marriage is constantly frustrated by the opposition of their sentimental and selfish mothers. Rather than to go against their parents' wishes they seek emotional relief in a blind trust in the future, that "After Tomorrow," life promises to be bright.

Minna Gombell, as the mother of Miss Nixon is said to give the greatest performance of her screen career, in a characterization that calls for her to deny love for her own daughter a performance which even surpasses her unforgetable 'Edna' in Bad Girl. This conflict arises from the fact that she is married to a weak and ineffectual husband, played by William Collier Sr. who has never been able to supply her with the luxuries demanded by her family.

Chautauqua's Adieu

LIKE the tent show, the medicine show and the barnstorming theatrical troups, all of which once flourished throughout the United States, the chautauqua is passing out of the picture in rural America. Its end was foretold 15 years ago.

With the passing this year of another and one of the largest chautauquas of the East, the section witnessed the last struggles of a vast institution that for the better part of half a century played a major role in the development of rural and semiurban America. Only in those vast, sparsely settled regions between the Missouri River and the Sierra Nevada will chautauquas pitch their tents this year.

Radio, moving pictures, automobiles and good roads robbed the chautauqua of its following. It ceased to be profitable or even self-supporting when it ceased to be rural and small-town America's principal source of platform entertainment and information.

There was a time when chautauqua week was the biggest event of the year. It ranked even higher than circus day and revival week as a community affair and drew eager patrons from the surrounding coutryside. As such it performed a valuable service, giving the non-urban millions essentials obtainable in no other way.

Though unmourned the chautauqua is not unappreciated. The nation will long remember its debt to the Swiss bell ringers, the lecturers on optimism and service, players and the magicians who their spellbinding under chautqua canvas.

Prosperity Returning

THERE are pessimists, malcontents, troublemakers, who believe that a panic exists or impends and who do not desire to think otherwise. Their poor distorted minds seem to derive some pleasure out of those visions of ruin and suffering, although difficult to see in what way they personally will benefit even though hard times discredit those of other political and social beliefs.

Fortunately for the future prosperity and happiness of the nation the great body of Americans are optimistic economically, politically and socially. They constantly see before them better times, better things. That is the mood in which one now finds them.

The United States is renewing its natural progress toward greater prosperity, greater production, greater comfort and better living conditions for the average man. The signs of vigor and confidence are as unmistakable as the signs of spring. The winter of discontent is over.

It is not surprising to see the country turning away from its recent troubles and rapidly regaining its habitual stride of prosperity.

All other public questions are subordinate to the supreme question of keeping the American people profitably employed. If the United States is busy and productive, no obstacle is too great for it to remove or surmount.

No Cause for Worry

THOSE apprehensive souls who live in fear of the end of things should find reassurance in the testimony of an astronomer that the universe is still a long way from disintegration, supposing that it is headed for such an ignominious finish.

Basing his estimate on the measurable radiation from the fiery suns and on the scientific experience that everything that burns must finally burn out, he calculates that in the stars, the last spark of heat and engery, won't flicker out for another thousand million million years.

Even on the hypotheses that everything that burns will in time burn out and that light and heat are essential to human life, there is apparently nothing to worry about for the present, if the astronomer has worked his arithmetic right.

But do not astromers presume a little too much in applying mundane laws to cosmic behavior? What ever process created these solar systems may conceivably be in operation today to maintain them or renew them. The origin of the universe is still far beyond the understanding of science; its maintenance may be another such mystery.

In any case, the date of dissolution is now postponed to a time where it need cause this generation no worry.

"EMBERS OF LOVE"

By HAZEL LIVINGSTON

CHAPTER FIFTY

The bubchen was well. He was chubby and blooming. He reached for the crystal beads around Lily Lou's neck, and pulled on them sturdily.

But he didn't know her. Oh, he didn't know her!

Mrs. Jensen came and took him from Lily Lou's arms, and he reached his little hand, and put it on Mrs. Jensen's shoulder as she bore him away.

Lily Lou wept.

"Pshaw!" Mrs. Jensen said, "don't you care! They never know anybody really at that age."

Lily Lou was not comforted. She told Tony about it when he came in to see her that evening. "Sure, he's too young to remember. Let's eat and you'l feel better," he said.

He had with him a can of antipasto, two tins of anchovies and a long loaf of Italian bread and half a pound of Swiss cheese.

She made coffee and they feasted.

"Too bad Maxie is out. She'll miss the party."

"I can't be sorry," Tony said, with his mouth full of bread and cheese.

"I know you don't like her. But she's been such a good friend to me, Tony. Where do you suppose I'd be living now if it weren't for her? And, oh, Tony, if I just had enough to hire someone to take care of the bubchen here Maxine would even agree to that! And there aren't many that would, now, are there, Tony?"

For answer he swore in his native Italian. Then he got up and began to pace the floor, waving his arms, muttering to himself:

"To think that I—that I would cut off my right arm for you—"

"Tony!"

"Don't stop me, I adore you. You know that. Always—from the first. And now this hellish poverty. Bills, debts, bills! Nothing to offer you."

Lily Lou's mouth twitched. She didn't know whether she was going to laugh or cry. Tony, poor blessed, darling Tony. . . .

He loved her. Not because she was pretty or because she had the beginnings of a career, but just for herself.

She found her eyes filling. "Tony," she said gently, "it does not matter, do you see? Because all that—all love—everything like that—is gone for me. Dear Tony, I loved the man I married, and I couldn't ever—couldn't ever—"

"You still love him!"

"Yes. I suppose so, Tony. Not that it matters."

"After all that is past you can still love him?"

"Yes, no matter what he did, it doesn't matter, because he's part of me."

She went through the want ads in the papers. But if she did get a job it wouldn't begin to pay for her lessons, with Gwin or anyone else worth while. And how would she eat and what would the bubchen do?

Better to have given up—stayed in California. But if she did that the baby . . . No, there was no going back. She'd have to go on, somehow.

Cod Liver Oil an Aid in Halting Rickets

When It Is Difficult to Give the Child Sufficient Sunlight This Remedy Is Best.

By Royal S. Copeland, M. D.
United States Senator from New York.
Former Commissioner of Health, New York City.

IN spite of advances made in the study of nutritional disorders, rickets continues to be one of the tragedies of childhood. The disease can be eliminated only when every parent takes advantage of what has been learned by medical science.

Rickets, one of the nutritional diseases of children, is caused by absence of sunlight and lack of phosphorus and lime in the diet. When the diet is deficient in vitamin D, there is improper growth and development of the muscles.

The disease can be prevented when the diet contains an abundant supply of vitamin D, or when the body is exposed to sunlight. When it is not possible to give the child sufficient sunlight, the diet must be regulated to supply the necessary protective substances.

Cod Liver Oil Aids

Fortunately, cod liver oil contains an abundant supply of vitamin D. That is why all baby specialists advise giving cod liver oil to every growing child as early as the sixth week, and that it be continued through the second year.

Because the early symptoms of rickets are overlooked, a child may have rickets for a long time without the parent realizing it. Though the disease is not fatal, it undermines the health and growth of the child. Every restless and irritable child that does not show normal progress in growth and development should be suspected of having rickets.

Infants with rickets constantly turn their heads from side to side. They sweat freely, have poor appetite and many digestive disturbances.

Importance of Prevention

Unfortunately, when the disease is neglected certain changes occur in the bony structure of the body due to lack of lime and phosphorus. The skull may become square in shape and show marked ridges. Bony swellings may be found on the ribs. The wrists are enlarged and soft. Lack of strength in the leg bones results in bowleg or knock-knee. Occasionally abnormal curvature of the spine results from rickets.

The importance of preventing rickets and of discovering it in its early stages cannot be overemphasized. Please bear in mind the value and importance of sunlight and cod liver oil in promoting the welfare of children.

At The Grand

"After Tomorrow," Fox Film version of the John Golden and Hugh Stange Broadway stage success of the same name opens its local engagement Thursday at the Grand Theater.

Charles Farrell and Marian Nixon are to be seen in the leading roles of the picture, as the romantic young sweethearts whose marriage is constantly frustrated by the opposition of their sentimental and selfish mothers. Rather than to go against their parents' wishes, they seek emotional relief in a blind trust in the future, that "After Tomorrow," life promises to be bright.

Minna Gombell, as the mother of Miss Nixon is said to give the greatest performance of her screen career, in a characterization that calls for her to deny love for her own daughter, a performance which even surpasses her unforgetable 'Edna' in "Bad Girl." This conflict arises from the fact that she is married to a weak and ineffectual husband, played by William Collier, Sr., who has never been able to supply her with the pretties demanded by her vanity.

The Daily Horoscope

Thursday, Aug. 18, 1932

Planetary aspects this morning are beneficial as the mind will be creative and observant. One's judgment of values and powers of calculation will lead to a desire for quicker and shorter methods. Today's vibrations incline people to be moving about from place to place, so that a variety of interests will give an inspiration to methods connected with hospitals and new laws instituted for reforms. The electrical apparatus in the movies used as means of lighting or quick manipulation may be subject to some improvements at this time.

An excellent day to correspond, deal with publishers, advertisers, editors, book shops. New methods in transportation may be looked for.

Persons born between the 15th and 17th of December and August should be particularly fortunate in accomplishing or bringing about successful changes in their particular fields.

Planetary indications for the afternoon hours show a strong inclination to be visionary. The ambition may be intensified, but if one goes to extremes, caution may be thrown to the winds, as there is danger of being thrown among people who may be underhanded and clever actors. Public attention will be shown to be centered upon matters connected with some noted forgeries and blackmail.

According to the stars, favorable relations will exist between France, Italy and England, and some pact entered into which will be satisfying.

In our country, the masses and classes will have changes advocated, but delays and misunderstandings are to be encountered until the presidential election.

Children born on this day may be idealists, but very restless. They will be clever judges of people.

KIRWIN, ENROUTE HOME, WRITES OF HISTORY OF MARX BROTHERS

By PAT J. KIRWIN

PORT ARTHUR, Texas, Aug. 15 —Hello Everybody!

Half-way home and stopping off here for a 72-hour visit and rest, we find that all of Texas is not what we pictured in a former letter, "bad-lands, cactus plants and sage-brush." For, during the past 24 hours we have seen spots of beauty and attractive homes that might almost equal scenery viewed in Ohio.

Our vacation concludes tomorrow evening as we board a train at Beaumont, Texas, for good old Circleville town. Only one phase of homesickness has crossed our path. That is our separation from The Circleville Herald, a copy of which we have not seen for two weeks.

Our attendance at the Olympic Games will be a memory that will cling with us for the rest of our lives. The most impressing feature of this great event to me was the fact that we believe it achieved the real Olympic ideal—democracy, equality and fraternity. To America, the Olympic village was just a weird community where the tongues of the world were brought together but to foreign athletes, it meant more than words can express—particularly those of smaller nations.

FEELING DIFFERENT

And that is also the opinion of Eduardo Prieta Sousa, Mexican fencer. He said, "In the past Olympiads, the teams from the wealthy nations were quartered in magnificient hotels. The teams from the poorer nations were given quarters in poor hostelries. Under such conditions it is impossible for the Olympic ideal of friendly equality to develop. Men from the poor nations were embarrased when men from the wealthier nations called on them. Their feeling of national pride was hurt because they could not properly entertain their visitors. The condition developed a feeling of social caste that was unwholesome. But here! Ah, it has been lovely! We have all been on the same plane. I could entertain my guest no better than he could entertain me. It has meant much to know that the athletes from the wealthy nations have been eating the same food, sleeping in the same kind of quarters. It has achieved the real Olympic ideal — democracy, equality, fraternity."

With this accomplished I believe that America and particularly, Los Angeles, should be proud of the fact that she has so successfully achieved the goal of the Xth Olympiad!

"HORSEFEATHERS"

On your Marx!

Yes, we realize that the Olympics are over—as a matter of fact the opening paragraph doesn't refer to the games.

Our sides are still aching from a 120-minute laugh after seeing the first showing of the Four Marx Brothers latest picture, "Horsefeathers." This was shown at the Paramount Theatre in Hollywood last Thursday, the day we left Los Angeles.

During our visit in Hollywood we didn't land the job of press agent for the hilarious quartet, but we do recommend "Horsefeathers" as a sure remedy to help every one forget the depression and have a hearty laugh.

Like all other Marx Brothers pictures, this one is distinguished by an irrationality which is only slightly challenged by romantic episode concerning Zeppo Marx. To tell the story of the picture would spoil a pleasant evening for many of you readers, whom I know will see it when it arrives in Circleville. It is filled with Marxian gags and characterized the cinematic achievements of these popular comedians. Groucho is the president of a co-educational college; Harpo is a thieving dog-catcher; Chico is a bootleg ice - man and Zeppo a "stewdant" at dear old Huxley. They combine their talents in grid-iron tussel, where the rules of play are conceived on the spur of the moment.

FIVE BROTHERS

Interesting news to me was the fact that there are really five Marx brothers. They are descended from a Hanoverian magician and ventriloquist named Lafe Schoenberg, who toured Germany for 50 years, carrying his scenery, tricks, wife and children in a roofed wagon. Mrs. Schoenberg played the harp. In 1860, the Schoenbergs emigrated to the U.S. Lafe Schoenberg died in Chicago in 1919. He was 101 years of age. One of his sons, Al, a tailor's assistant who was frequently discharged for his habit of organizing noisy quartets, took to singing on the stage. He chose the name of Al Shean and became famed with the late Ed "Oh, Mister" Gallagher. Al Schoenberg's sister Minna was a Manhattan fur and lace worker. She marriad an Alsatian immigrant named Samuel Marx who frequently sat up all night playing pinochle in his tailor shop. Mr. and Mrs. Samuel Marx had five sons: Leonard (Chico), Arthur (Harpo), Milton (Gummo), Julius (Groucho) and ten year later, Herbert (Zeppo.)

The four older brothers received their nicknames at Galesburg, Ill., in 1915, from Art Fischer, vaudeville monologist, who was playing poker with them. Groucho was glum, Harpo played the harp, Chico liked chicken, Gummo wore rubbers. Zeppo's nickname, selected by Groucho, means nothing. Gummo was a member of the brothers' act for a number of years but entered the rain-coat business after the War, and Zeppo, just out of high school joined the act. Gummo now has a prosperous ladies' ready-to-wear establishment in Manhattan.

All of this interesting information was gathered in the August 15 edition of the weekly magazine, "Time." This will be my last letter from out of Ohio. Expect to be at my regular duties Friday. Until then, so long.

FIRE CHIEF

double parking is permitted, that there is an excessive use of oil on the city streets and that there are a number of lots overgrown with weeds.

The report as submitted to council by Mr. Lee follows;

"We the Kiwanis club of the City of Circleville, being interested in the welfare of our city would like to see the ordinances and laws governing and regulating the speed and lights of and on automobiles enforced in a more rigid manner than they now are.

DOUBLE PARKING

"We especially would like to call attention to excessive double parking on E. and W. Main-sts, especially on Saturday afternoons and nights and would suggest that some steps be taken to curtail this as it is a great menace to lives and property because of the great amount of travel on the street;

"We would like to go on record as being opposed to present excessive use of oil unnecessarily on some street and many alleys of the city. We feel that money should be expended for more permanent types of street construction, regulated by the amount of improvement each year, according to the financial ability to improve;

"We would like to point out to council that many lots in the city are overgrown with weeds which at this time of the year should be cut as the law provides;

"We also believe it is bad policy for individuals to follow the fire apparatus on its runs to fires and this should be discouraged.

"We feel that the present laws and ordinances are adequate to meet the above situations and all that is necessary is more rigid enforcement and more judicious expenditures."

OPENS DISCUSSION

The matter was then opened to discussion with Mr. Lee telling council that all he had to say was embodied in the report read by Clerk Fred Nicholas.

Councilman Frank Marion then took the floor and advocated a time parking plan in which persons who now place their automobiles in a space on Saturday afternoon and keep them there throughout the day and night would be eliminated. "Council and city officials should study the situation," he closed.

Councilman C. O. Leist said: "We have enough parking laws and ordinances and this matter is not a question for legislation but of enforcing what we already have."

President of Council John Goeller said: "The time they are permitted to park is the trouble. If we would set a time limit it would be the way to correct the trouble."

Safety Director J. Wallace Crist closed the discussion by saying "An officer is kept on W. Main-st every Saturday evening for the purpose of encouraging potential purchasers to remain in the city but to park for only a few minutes and then go on. This one officer is half the force we have on duty on Saturday night. Time parking is a matter of educating our own people to move their cars from the streets and permit the country people to find places to park. I, personally, do not favor a time parking ordinance."

The reports of fire chief and the Kiwanis club wefe placed in the hands of Safety Director Crist and Service Director L. E. Miller.

COUNCIL BEGINS

The annual Council of the Crurches of Christ in Christian Union opened with a splendid delegation present.

Rev. A. E. Sager, pastor of North Columbus Church, brought the evangelistic message at the evening service.

On Thursday evening Rev. O. L. Ferguson of our church here at Circleville will preach. We again invite one and all to any or all of the services during our Council and Camp.

had indicated previously when she had insisted upon going with him.

A light rain which had been falling during the early morning ended and the weather cleared up, while TransAtlantic reports were favorable.

Light westerly winds to Mid-Atlantic were forecast, with light easterly winds from there on. Their velocities were given as not more than 15 m. p. h.

Just before hopping off Mollison was given a letter from Alfred Byrne, Lord Mayor of Dublin, addressed to Mayor James J. Walker of New York.

STUDIES REPORTS

Mollison left his Dublin hotel at 8:15 this morning and flew here from Baldonnel airport. After a careful study of weather reports he announced his intention of flying today.

"The weather reports are satisfactory," he said, relieved to be able to get away after more than a week's delay due to storms either local or over the Atlantic. His ship had been in constant trim, ready to take off at a moment's notice.

All of the ship's comforts were sacrificed to make way for the 155 gallons of gasoline he carried, extra tanks being installed wherever possible. There was no upholstery.

Coffee and barley sugar were all that Mollison took for food and drink. He was guided by the illuminated dial of his super compass and a radio with which he hoped to keep in touch with liners on the great circle route beneath him.

"There is not a doubt in my mind that the flight can be accomplished," Mollison said confidently as he took off. "An English machine and engine can do it.

"There is far less hazard in the double Atlantic flight than in a solo flight to the Cape (Mollison holds the record of four days and 17 hours for the flight from England to Capetown, South Africa)."

THE DARK AND BLOODY GROUND

"Nature in the Raw"—as portrayed by N. C. Wyeth, noted painter of the American Indian... inspired by the fierce cruelty of the savages whose knives and tomahawks caused the story of the Pioneer West to be written in blood.

—and raw tobaccos have no place in cigarettes

They are not present in Luckies ... the mildest cigarette you ever smoked

WE buy the finest, the very finest tobaccos in all the world—but that does not explain why folks everywhere regard Lucky Strike as the mildest cigarette. The fact is, we never overlook the truth that "Nature in the Raw is Seldom Mild"—so these fine tobaccos, after proper aging and mellowing, are then given the benefit of that Lucky Strike purifying process, described by the words—"It's toasted". That's why folks in every city, town and hamlet say that Luckies are such mild cigarettes.

"It's toasted"

That package of mild Luckies

"If a man write a better book, preach a better sermon, or make a better mouse-trap than his neighbor, tho he build his house in the woods, the world will make a beaten path to his door."—RALPH WALDO EMERSON.

Does not this explain the world-wide acceptance and approval of Lucky Strike?

He chose the name of Al Shean and became famed with the late Ed "Oh, Mister" Gallagher. Al Schoenberg's sister Minna was a Manhattan fur and lace worker. She married an Alsatian immigrant named Samuel Marx who frequently sat up all night playing pinochle in his tailor shop. Mr. and Mrs. Samuel Marx had five sons: Leonard (Chico), Arthur (Harpo), Milton (Gummo), Julius (Groucho) and ten year later, Herbert (Zeppo.)

The four older brothers received their nicknames at Galesburg, Ill., in 1915, from Art Fischer, vaudeville monologist, who was playing poker with them. Groucho was glum, Harpo played the harp, Chico liked chicken, Gummo wore rubbers. Zeppo's nickname, selected by Groucho, means nothing. Gummo was a member of the brothers' act for a number of years but entered the rain-coat business after the War, and Zeppo, just out of high school joined the act. Gummo now has a prosperous ladies' ready-to-wear establishment in Manhattan.

All of this interesting information was gathered in the August 15 edition of the weekly magazine, "Time." This will be my last letter from out of Ohio. Expect to be at my regular duties Friday. Until then, so long.

double parking is permitted, that there is an excessive use of oil on the city streets and that there are a number of lots overgrown with weeds.

The report as submitted to council by Mr. Lee follows;

"We the Kiwanis club of the City of Circleville, being interested in the welfare of our city would like to see the ordinances and laws governing and regulating the speed and lights of and on automobiles enforced in a more rigid manner than they now are.

DOUBLE PARKING

"We especially would like to call attention to excessive double parking on E. and W. Main-sts, especially on Saturday afternoons and nights and would suggest that some steps be taken to curtail this as it is a great menace to lives and property because of the great amount of travel on the street;

"We would like to go on record as being opposed to present excessive use of oil unnecessarily on some street and many alleys of the city. We feel that money should be expended for more permanent types of street construction, regulated by the amount of improvement each year, according to the financial ability to improve;

"We would like to point out to council that many lots in the city are overgrown with weeds which at this time of the year should be cut as the law provides;

"We also believe it is bad policy for individuals to follow the fire apparatus on its runs to fires and this should be discouraged.

"We feel that the present laws and ordinances are adequate to meet the above situations and all that is necessary is more rigid enforcement and more judicious expenditures."

OPENS DISCUSSION

The matter was then opened to discussion with Mr. Lee telling council that all he had to say was embodied in the report read by Clerk Fred Nicholas.

Councilman Frank Marion then took the floor and advocated a time parking plan in which persons who now place their automobiles in a space on Saturday afternoon and keep them there throughout the day and night would be eliminated. "Council and city officials should study the situation," he closed.

Councilman C. O. Leist said: "We have enough parking laws and ordinances and this matter is not a question for legislation but of enforcing what we already have."

President of Council John Goeller said: "The time they are permitted to park is the trouble. If we would set a time limit it would be the way to correct the trouble."

Safety Director J. Wallace Crist closed the discussion by saying "An officer is kept on W. Main-st every Saturday evening for the purpose of encouraging potential purchasers to remain in the city but to park for only a few minutes and then go on. This one officer is half the force we have on duty on Saturday night. Time parking is a matter of educating our own people to move their cars from the streets and permit the country people to find places to park. I, personally, do not favor a time parking ordinance."

The reports of fire chief and the Kiwanis club wefe placed in the hands of Safety Director Crist and Service Director L. E. Miller.

SCOT AIRMAN

had indicated previously when she had insisted upon going with him.

A light rain which had been falling during the early morning ended and the weather cleared up, while TransAtlantic reports were favorable.

Light westerly winds to Mid-Atlantic were forecast, with light easterly winds from there on. Their velocities were given as not more than 15 m. p. h.

Just before hopping off Mollison was given a letter from Alfred Byrne, Lord Mayor of Dublin, addressed to Mayor James J. Walker of New York.

STUDIES REPORTS

Mollison left his Dublin hotel at 8:15 this morning and flew here from Baldonnel airport. After a careful study of weather reports he announced his intention of flying today.

"The weather reports are satisfactory," he said, relieved to be able to get away after more than a week's delay due to storms either local or over the Atlantic. His ship had been in constant trim, ready to take off at a moment's notice.

All of the ship's comforts were sacrificed to make way for the 155 gallons of gasoline he carried, extra tanks being installed wherever possible. There was no upholstery.

Coffee and barley sugar were all that Mollison took for food and drink. He was guided by the illuminated dial of his super compass and a radio with which he hoped to keep in touch with liners on the great circle route beneath him.

"There is not a doubt in my mind that the flight can be accomplished," Mollison said confidently as he took off. "An English machine and engine can do it.

"There is far less hazard in the double Atlantic flight than in a solo flight to the Cape (Mollison holds the record of four days and 17 hours for the flight from England to Capetown, South Africa).

The fact is, we never overlook the truth that "Nature in the Raw is Seldom Mild"—so these fine tobaccos, after proper aging and mellowing, are then given the benefit of that Lucky Strike purifying process, described by the words—"It's toasted". FARM TAX LOAD CUT BY GAS TAX

Gasoline tax money, a part of which is now allotted to townships for road building purposes provides means of reducing the tax load on farm property.

Much of the taxes levied for expenditure by townships is used for road building purpose. The gasoline tax money will permit reductions of 50 to 100 percent in the tions of 50 to 100 percent inthe part of the farmer's tax which is spent for township road building.

The charts above, prepared by H. R. Moore, specialist in taxation for the department of rural economics, Ohio State University, illustrate the amount of relief from prosperity taxation for township road purpose that the gasoline tax is offording. The chart represent an average for all townships in the state.

In at least seven counties, Adams, Brown, Gallia, Lawrence, Pike, Union and Vinton, township property taxes collected for roads aggregated less than the gasoline tax money which will be given these townships in 1932.

In 1929 the law relating to the distribution of gasoline tax money was amended to give townships 5 per cent of the 4-cent gasoline tax. In 1931, the law was amended again; this time to give townships 8.75 per cent of the 4-cent tax. Under these amendments, each township received $800 in 1929, $1400 in 1930, and $1800 in 1931. In 1932 each township probably will receive for $2400 to $2600, according to Moore's estimates.

BUENA VISTA, Colo. — An "earthquake" that shook the home of Mrs. M. E. Payne here recently was found to have been caused by two elephants which had strayed from a circus lot and were scratching themselves against the house.

CANNING IS LITTLE UNDER THE NORMAL

COLUMBUS, Aug. 18.—Despite low prices, the threatened drought and overproduction in 1931, Ohio's commercial canning will be only slightly below normal this year, leading crop experts told International News Service today.

When principal canning factories open in a few days for the late summer activity they will be supplying a market not much smaller than last year's, according to E. A. Fleming, chief of the bureau of markets in the state department of agriculture.

Comparatively heavy business is expected despite the fact that the entire fruit crop is suffering from lack of moisture and tomatoes are selling for only 55 cents a bushel.

Unless heavy rains come soon, the apple crop will be 50 per cent short, Fleming predicted. The threatened shortage is somewhat reflected in the price of apples, which hovers around $1 a bushel for the best varities. This, Fleming said, is "a good price." Peach prices are also good, this fact also being laid to the shortage.

The prospect of good or at least "fair" business in the canneries is attributed to the ability of farmers to guage the market conditions and plant accordingly, according to J. W. Tuttle, federal crop reporter with offices here.

The sweet corn crop in Ohio fell off 71 per cent this year, from 72,700 tons to 21,300 tons, and this apparently means that overproduction in canning last year was most marked in that field.

The tomato crop, however, according to U. S. department of agriculture figures published a few days ago, almost held its own. The reduction was from 61, 800 tons to 58,700 tons, approximately five per cent.

Exactly how the law of supply and demand will affect the late tomato crop prices is yet to be seen. Due to dry weather, the tomato crop is "extremely late" in some sections.

Prof. Wendell Paddock of Ohio State university emphasized that there has been a large carry-over from last year's crops and that the low prices for fruits and vegetables will be very noticeable in some lines of canning.

The canning of berries and cherries has already brought the expected result. The production this year was low.

FARM TAX LOAD CUT BY GAS TAX

Gasoline tax money, a part of which is now allotted to townships for road building purposes provides means of reducing the tax load on farm property.

Much of the taxes levied for expenditure by townships is used for road building purpose. The gasoline tax money will permit reductions of 50 to 100 percent in the tions of 50 to 100 percent inthe part of the farmer's tax which is spent for township road building.

The charts above, prepared by H. R. Moore, specialist in taxation for the department of rural economics, Ohio State University, illustrate the amount of relief from prosperity taxation for township road purpose that the gasoline tax is offording. The chart represent an average for all townships in the state.

In at least seven counties, Adams, Brown, Gallia, Lawrence, Pike, Union and Vinton, township property taxes collected for roads aggregated less than the gasoline tax money which will be given these townships in 1932.

In 1929 the law relating to the distribution of gasoline tax money was amended to give townships 5 per cent of the 4-cent gasoline tax. In 1931, the law was amended again; this time to give townships 8.75 per cent of the 4-cent tax. Under these amendments, each township received $800 in 1929, $1400 in 1930, and $1800 in 1931. In 1932 each township probably will receive for $2400 to $2600, according to Moore's estimates.

STOVE COOKS FOR 100

AKRON, O.—Because of the specially-made stove in the U. S. S. Akron reflected sun rays which bothered the cook, the cooking unit for the U. S. S. Macon will have a dull non-reflecting surface. Thirty pounds heavier than the Akron's stove, the stove made for the Macon is large enough to cook for as many as 100 persons at a meal.

CANNING IS LITTLE UNDER THE NORMAL

COLUMBUS, Aug. 18.—Despite low prices, the threatened drought and overproduction in 1931, Ohio's commercial canning will be only slightly below normal this year, leading crop experts told International News Service today.

When principal canning factories open in a few days for the late summer activity they will be supplying a market not much smaller than last year's, according to E. A. Fleming, chief of the bureau of markets in the state department of agriculture.

Comparatively heavy business is expected despite the fact that the entire fruit crop is suffering from lack of moisture and tomatoes are selling for only 55 cents a bushel.

Unless heavy rains come soon, the apple crop will be 50 per cent short, Fleming predicted. The threatened shortage is somewhat reflected in the price of apples, which hovers around $1 a bushel for the best varities. This, Fleming said, is "a good price." Peach prices are also good, this fact also being laid to the shortage.

The prospect of good or at least "fair" business in the canneries is attributed to the ability of farmers to guage the market conditions and plant accordingly, according to J. W. Tuttle, federal crop reporter with offices here.

The sweet corn crop in Ohio fell off 71 per cent this year, from 72,700 tons to 21,300 tons, and this apparently means that overproduction in canning last year was most marked in that field.

The tomato crop, however, according to U. S. department of agriculture figures published a few days ago, almost held its own. The reduction was from 61, 800 tons to 58,700 tons, approximately five per cent.

Exactly how the law of supply and demand will affect the late tomato crop prices is yet to be seen. Due to dry weather, the tomato crop is "extremely late" in some sections.

Prof. Wendell Paddock of Ohio State university emphasized that there has been a large carry-over from last year's crops and that the low prices for fruits and vegetables will be very noticeable in some lines of canning.

The canning of berries and cherries has already brought the expected result. The production this year was low.
